By memorandum 1/7/66 the FBI Laboratory furnished an inventory of Technical Equipment to the Director. I was instructed to determine whether all this equipment was necessary in view of your observation and the Director's concurrence that it looked exorbitant. The Director approved getting an evaluation and recommendations from the 10 field offices currently having technical installations in operation so we could form a judgment as to how much of the equipment they were using and how much they estimated they would need to maintain those installations. These 10 offices were Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, San Juan and Washington Field. Their answers have been received, tabulated and on 1/25/66 were updated in so far as concerns New York and Washington Field Offices to make adjustments for 9 microphone installations just discontinued there. The ten offices surveyed have 44.8% of all of the items of Technical Equipment represented by the total inventory. The remaining 47 field offices have 32% of the total inventory and the Seat of Government has the remaining 23.2%.

Special consideration was given the Technical Equipment consisting of (1) that in the 10 offices just mentioned which is being neither used nor needed for maintaining present installations, (2) equipment in the 47 other field offices, and (3) the more highly technical devices maintained at Seat of Government. On 1/26/66 representatives of the Laboratory, Domestic Intelligence, General Investigative, Special Investigative and Inspection Divisions jointly reviewed the entire inventory of Technical Equipment covering all field offices and the Seat of Government. This was done in an effort to determine what recommendations could be made for removal of any of this equipment from the field offices as being unnecessary in light of Bureau's present and foreseeable commitments; also to determine what recommendations could be made for disposal of any Technical Equipment. In making this review all divisions were guided in their opinions and recommendations by their knowledge of the Bureau's responsibilities under the jurisdiction of those divisions, past experience during wartime and other emergency situations, the unsettled state of world conditions, increasing world-wide tensions and especially the Bureau's current and estimated future responsibilities in the security field.

The representatives were also mindful of technical difficulties posing great installation and maintenance risks which have necessitated great time and costs in specialty designing, making or procuring much of this equipment and if disposed of would present untold problems of rapid replacement in case of future emergency need. All representatives realize how imperative it is for the Bureau to be in a state of preparedness to immediately assume all of its regular and emergency responsibilities and this necessitates the Bureau's having at its command all investigative tools which have proven essential for our doing the job. In many cases it was realized that disposal or destruction of Technical Equipment would prevent us from moving for months because of replacement problems.

In the memorandum of 1/7/66 which furnished the Director the technical inventory, it was pointed out that the total inventory included [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Looking at these bare figures, it should be realized these categories embrace approximately 60 individual types of technical equipment essential to meet the varying conditions encountered in the Bureau's investigative work. Further, these items have been distributed throughout the 57 field offices and an essential reserve maintained at the Seat of Government so as to supply each field office with minimum needs based on the investigative experience of that office and to provide for essential peak periods and emergencies. To illustrate, the Bureau has [REDACTED] distributed throughout the 57 field offices [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] at the Seat of Government. Another pertinent factor bearing on this analysis is that with many of these items of technical equipment the Bureau has found it necessary to make or procure several variations of the same piece of equipment in order to cope with varying conditions (such as climate, difficulty of access, etc.).

All Bureau representatives were completely mindful of the foregoing factors in making their detailed item-by-item review of the Technical Inventory. Despite the seemingly large figures representing the sum total of the approximately 60 various types of technical equipment, the Division representatives detected no instance which they felt constituted an excessive quantity or maldistribution of this equipment, in the light of world tensions and Bureau responsibilities.

It is further noted that all present equipment is modern and up to date, is maintained under tight inventory control, and represents an investment in excess of one million dollars. Also, the Inspection Division has been alert during regular inspections in the field and at the Seat of Government to detecting unjustified quantities of such equipment and based on its experience feels the quantities and distribution are consistent with essential needs, including provision for necessary emergencies. Of course, the Bureau is operating under the Director's instructions not to construct or procure any additional microphone devices. It is felt similar instructions should apply at this time to wire-tapping equipment.

Memo for Mr. Tolson
Re: Inventory of Technical Equipment

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. Giving special emphasis to such factors as the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the uncertainty due to world tensions, the time lag in securing replacements, and the monetary investment involved, it is recommended no change be made in the Bureau's present inventory of Technical Equipment.

2. That the existing prohibition against constructing or procuring additional microphone devices be extended to include wiretapping equipment at this time.

Memorandum for Mr. Tolson
RE: INVENTORY OF TECHNICAL EQUIPMENT

ADDENDUM: (JPM:ers 1/27/66)

Messrs. DeLoach, Sullivan and Mohr feel that it would be highly undesirable for the Bureau to undertake to destroy a substantial amount of our technical equipment, all of which has been found to be in excellent operating condition and none of which can be considered as obsolete or approaching obsolescence. The Bureau has a heavy financial investment in this equipment and in some cases many man hours were spent in developing and constructing it. To destroy a substantial amount, say 1/3, which would involve approximately a quarter of a million dollars, could subject the Bureau to extreme criticism if it ever became known that we did this. We would be subjected particularly to severe criticism if we undertook to destroy any of this equipment at this particular time in order to reduce our inventory.

Much of this equipment has been designed and constructed for use in emergency situations such as during wartime. We have equipment stored [ ] for use in connection with a wartime emergency. We propose that rather to destroy any of this valuable equipment that it would be far better to recall 1/3 of the equipment, delete it from our field inventory and store it [ ] for war emergency purposes. It is further felt that none of this equipment should be recalled from war emergency storage [ ] for current use without the specific approval of the Director. We feel that if this procedure is followed it would achieve the objective of reducing our domestic inventory of technical equipment and at the same time we could justify to any one the desirability of storing such equipment in a safe location for wartime emergency use. We think that this alternative is highly desirable at this time in view of the war in Viet Nam, its possible escalation in the immediate future and the world-wide tensions which we know to exist at this time. We should also bear in mind that there is a good possibility that the consular agreement with Soviet Russia will probably be approved this year and if it is, we can expect a number of consular offices of the Soviet to be located in this country. We most certainly will have to cover these as we do with other Soviet establishments now here. b7E

The Dominican Index (DI) was established to assist in fulfilling the Bureau's mission in the Dominican Republic. It is a ready record of individuals who should be continually borne in mind from the standpoint of the security of the Dominican Republic.

The political situation in the Dominican Republic is by no means settled and currently goes from one crisis to another. Subversive groups and their members are becoming more vocal and increasingly active. It is entirely conceivable if there is another eruption of civil disorder such as occurred in April, 1965, that the United States Government will be in need of information identifying subversive individuals in the Dominican Republic. The DI can serve this purpose on an immediate basis.

At the present time, two alphabetical indices containing the names of those individuals who are identified as communists or otherwise believed to be subversive are maintained, one by Legal Attache, Santo Domingo, and the other at the Seat of Government by the Latin-American Section. In view of the Bureau's responsibilities in the Dominican Republic placed on it by the President, it is considered highly necessary to have a third index maintained [redacted] at the relocation site where it would be readily available in connection with our Buplans responsibilities.

It is anticipated an index card identical to that currently maintained by Legal Attache, Santo Domingo, and the Seat of Government, will be furnished the Special Agent in Charge (SAC), [redacted] on each individual placed on the DI. These cards will be furnished SAC, [redacted] after the individual case file has been reviewed to insure a particular subject warrants being placed on the DI and the card bearing necessary background and subversive data has been prepared by the Statistical Section. When changes occur such as residence, employment, etc., a new card will be prepared and sent SAC, [redacted] advising him that this is a corrected card which should be substituted for the one in file and to destroy the old card.

Buplans Emergency Headquarters - For S.O.G.

The question has been raised concerning the number of relocation personnel to be accommodated at ☐ to be constructed ☐

In the event relocation is ordered and the Bureau is to be operational with the Domestic Intelligence Division and the Soviet Section, in particular, discharging its responsibilities effectively and efficiently, the Soviet Section would require the same number of personnel that it would require under operational conditions at its present relocation site, namely 20 Agents and 17 clerical personnel.

If, on the other hand, it is to be Bureau policy that the Division and the Soviet Section, in particular, will not be operational but will engage in a "Noah's Ark" type of existence upon relocation, all that would be necessary for such nonoperational occupancy of the premises would be five Agents and two clerical personnel.

DEFENSE PLANS

JS (Buplans) Emergency Headquarters For C.O.C.

By memorandum D. J. Brennan, Jr., to W. C. Sullivan dated 1/24/66 and captioned "Expansion [REDACTED]" each section was requested to re-evaluate its relocation personnel needs for the purpose of seriously reducing the number of persons designated for relocation.

The Research-Satellite Section currently has 17 Agents and 21 non-Agent personnel for a total compliment of 38. Of this number, 10 Agents, three secretaries, and three clerks have been designated as relocatees.

This section investigates cases involving nine countries. After making a re-evaluation, it is felt that, at a very minimum, eight Agents, 3 secretaries, and 3 clerks would be needed to carry out our defense plans.

Accordingly, two Agents-- [REDACTED] and H. H. Wallace-- will no longer be considered relocatees. However, they will be considered as alternates replacing J. W. O'Rourke and [REDACTED] in this capacity.

Remymemo to Mr. Malone dated January 16, 1961, outlining operating instructions for the voice security equipment [REDACTED] used in captioned telephone network for the Director's use at the Bureau's relocation site [REDACTED]

The Whitehouse Communications Agency (WHCA) is in the process of replacing existing [REDACTED] cryptographic equipment with new modern [REDACTED] cryptographic equipment and has partially completed this installation [REDACTED]

The equipment without remote facilities has been installed and is working. Only one telephone instrument has been provided which is located with the equipment [REDACTED] equipment has been disconnected. All existing instructions regarding [REDACTED] use and operation can now be disregarded.

This equipment is owned and maintained by WHCA and is provided at the relocation site at no cost to the Bureau. WHCA previously furnished additional telephone instruments and extension facilities on the [REDACTED] so that the Director's calls could be placed and screened by his telephone room personnel. Electronic Maintenance Technician [REDACTED], has talked with WHCA personnel, pointing out the desirability of having the same features on the [REDACTED]. They advised they were aware of this and had ordered special cable for this installation on "Bluestreak" order which ordinarily takes a week to ten days for delivery. This was over three weeks ago. They will install it upon receipt.

On June 28, 1966, the vital records maintained by the Soviet Section at our relocation site were reviewed and were found to be current and readily accessible.

In reviewing the Prodip manuals submitted by the New York, Washington Field, and Chicago Offices, it was noted that all offices do not date revised pages submitted for these manuals. It is suggested that in the future the offices be instructed that revised pages should bear the date of revision.

This is being submitted for your information. Appropriate action with respect to the Prodip manuals will be instituted by Mr. Whitson.

Obuplans Emergency Headquarters For Govt of Government

Attached letter of 7/19/66 from manager of captioned system points out General Services Administration's (GSA) responsibility under executive order, and Bureau of the Budget directive to serve the emergency relocation site communications requirements of the civil agencies. Relet advises Manager, NCS, has established Ad Hoc working group of representatives from Office of Emergency (OEP), GSA and NCS to assist GSA in identifying civil agency relocation site communications requirements, and determination of communications facilities required to meet the requirements and how to pay for them.

Relet requests we designate, no later than 7/25/66, a representative to meet with the task group. We have inquired and find that we are not limited to one representative but may have several if we desire.

I attended a meeting, along with representatives of other civil agencies, at OEP's emergency relocation site on 1/15/64 concerning the same matter. At that time, with the Director's approval, I informed representatives of OEP and NCS that our headquarters relocation site was equipped for communicating with the relocations sites of other Government agencies in the Federal relocation arc that we felt that with our own [redacted]

[redacted] we could communicate from our relocation site with the relocation sites of our field offices; that we have no requirements for any additional emergency communications facilities.

Although our position remains the same, I feel that representatives of the Files and Communications, Laboratory and Domestic Intelligence Divisions (Defense Plans Desk) should meet with the Ad Hoc group to reaffirm the Bureau's position and express our interest in being informed as to what the group's thinking and planning is and what may result from this project. made clear that the fact that we are not requesting any facilities be designed, built or provided specifically for the FBI does not preclude the possibility that if facilities which appear advantageous become operational in the future, we might request participation in such facilities at that time, if this appears desirable then.

RECOMMENDATION:

That representatives from the Files and Communications and Laboratory Divisions, and the Defense Plans Desk, attend the above-mentioned meeting and reiterate the Bureau's position that we have no additional communications requirements at this time for relocation sites beyond what we now have. SUBJECT: FILES AND COMMUNICATIONS DIVISION
DEFENSE PLANS - EVACUATION OF FILES

STREAMLINING MEASURE

Emergency Headquarters for 10/20/67
In connection with the Bureau's desire to consider effecting economy through discontinuance of procedures which are desirable but not essential, it is proposed that the Bureau's evacuation program as it applies to file material be re-evaluated.

The Records Branch, Files and Communications Division, maintains an index of files which are scheduled for evacuation to the Bureau's relocation site in the event of a dire emergency. This index is made up of index cards and duplicate assignment cards which list the Bureau file numbers of security index subjects, security informants, and pending security subjects. At the time this procedure was established, it was assumed that sufficient advance warning would be given to permit drawing these files from the file cabinets at the Seat of Government and transporting them to the relocation site. With the present-day high-speed aircraft and unmanned rockets, it is doubtful that advance warning would allow sufficient time for mass evacuation of file material. At the present time, it is estimated that the evacuation index represents approximately 48,000 files.

Maintaining the evacuation index in an up-to-date condition requires considerable clerical effort; for example, during month of November, more than 4,900 additions or deletions were made in the index. Most of this material is forwarded to the Records Branch by the Domestic Intelligence Division. It is understood that, when a new case is assigned to a supervisor in the Domestic Intelligence Division, an assignment card is made and a duplicate of that card is forwarded to the Records Branch for inclusion in the index. After the case is closed or is no longer pertinent insofar as the defense plans are concerned, notification is received from the Domestic Intelligence Division and the duplicate assignment card is removed from the index.

Memo L. E. Short to Mr. Tavel
Re: Files and Communications Division
Defense Plans - Evacuation of Files
Streamlining Measure

Inasmuch as the original assignment cards are available in the Domestic Intelligence Division and possibly could be used to indicate the files needed for evacuation under emergency conditions, it is believed the evacuation index maintained within the Records Branch could be eliminated.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the evacuation index maintained in the Records Branch in connection with the Bureau's defense plans be abolished.

INDEX WILL BE DESTROYED.

By memo 6-21-67 I pointed out that a meeting of representatives of the operating agencies of the National Communications System (NCS) was to be held on 6-22-67 and that Mr. Pat Hasie of the General Services Administration, who represents civilian agencies in the matter of setting priorities on the NCS, had indicated he understood that the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) would continue an objection they had previously made to the use of 1-C (highest available) priorities by the FBI.

Mr. Conrad and I attended the meeting 6-22-67. The Bureau, on its leased circuits such as those from [redacted] and to our relocation site [redacted] and certain circuits necessary for our interoffice radio system, has been granted 1-C priorities based on the criterion "critical intelligence concerning potentially catastrophic attack" which appears in the existing NCS priority setup. A revision of this setup is being drafted to make it consistent with a priority system contained in an order issued by the Federal Communication Commission and the Director of Telecommunications Management for private industry. In connection with this revision, terminology was inserted in the draft under the 1-C priority to the effect that the first circuit designated by the heads of the FBI, [redacted] to the most critical locations for internal security essential to national survival would be granted 1-C priority. The draft also provides that the first circuit designated by the Directors of [redacted]

Lieutenant Commander Mott, representing the Military Communications Electronics Board, a working group under the JCS, stated at the meeting that the Joint Chiefs have no objection to the FBI being granted 1-C priority on our circuits based on the "critical intelligence" criterion but they object to the insertion of the phraseology making internal security a criterion for 1-C since they feel that this will broaden the category and permit other agencies to apply for 1-C which do not necessarily have the most critical functions to fulfill during nuclear attack. Mr. David Solomon, who was at the meeting representing the Executive Agent of the NCS and who will obviously carry considerable weight in making a recommendation to Secretary of Defense McNamara, the Executive Agent, concerning any resolution of the objection by the Joint Chiefs, stated that he felt that the objection to the internal security criterion as such was not well taken and the problem of excessive circuits being certified for 1-C was one of control by the NCS officials rather than by eliminating internal security as the criterion. Mr. Conrad and I proposed that the FBI be specifically named in the criterion pertaining to critical intelligence and there was no objection to this on the part of the Joint Chiefs or any of other operating agencies' representatives; therefore, it was indicated that this would be added to the draft revision. We specifically pointed out that we did not want the FBI deleted by name under the internal security criterion as it now appears in the draft.

Mr. Solomon indicated he felt the FBI certainly had a legitimate justification for using 1-C priority since we are members of the U.S. Intelligence Board and as it stands now it appears that the objection by the Joint Chiefs has been withdrawn. From a practical standpoint, as long as the FBI is named under the 1-C priority category, it makes relatively little difference to us whether it is on the basis of critical intelligence or internal security.

It was indicated that a new revision of the draft would be distributed to the operating agencies for their approval or comments and that we would be advised at such time as this occurred. We will, of course, follow closely to insure that the Bureau's interests are protected in this matter.

BU PLANS

EMERGENCY HEADQUARTERS FOR SOG

By memoranda 6-13 and 6-15-67 I pointed out that I had attended a meeting at which a representative of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) had indicated an objection to the FBI having 1-C priorities for the restoration of its leased circuits in a pending revision of the priority system of the National Communications System (NCS). At the conclusion of the meeting, Major Norton, the JCS representative, indicated he personally felt that the FBI should be permitted to continue the use of 1-C priorities but pointed out that he would have to present this to his group, which is the Military Communications Electronics Board, for their concurrence. I pointed out that Mr. Pat Hasie, who represents the civilian agencies in the matter of setting priorities on the NCS, had indicated that he would let us know as soon as an official position was taken by the Military Communications Electronics Board of the JCS. The Director said, "Let me know. H."

Hasie called this morning, 6-21, stating he understood that a meeting was to be held at 1 P.M. tomorrow, 6-22, at which the official position of the JCS would be presented to the operating agencies of the NCS and that this position would be that the JCS continued their objection to the use of 1-C priorities by the FBI. He stated that he felt that whatever pressure the FBI could exercise would help to defeat this position and that he personally would defend our use of the priorities and suggested that I might want to attend the meeting. After consulting with Assistant Director Conrad, I advised Hasie that both Mr. Conrad and I would like to attend this meeting and I will clear this with Major General George Pickett, Deputy Director of the Defense Communications System.

If the JCS continue their objection to the FBI's use of 1-C priorities at this meeting, as Mr. Hasie has predicted, I feel that a letter should be sent to Secretary of Defense McNamara from the Director protesting this position. Mr. McNamara is Executive Agent of the NCS. I also would intend to personally protest to General O'Connell, the Director of Telecommunications Management and Special Assistant to the President for Telecommunications. General O'Connell, in the latter capacity, will make the final recommendation to the President in case there is a disagreement as to the use of the 1-C priority.

By memo 6-13-67 I pointed out that there had been an objection by the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the Bureau having 1-C priorities assigned to our leased circuits; that I had attended a meeting at which I explained the Bureau's responsibilities; that Major Norton, representing the Joint Chiefs, had indicated he felt their objection to Bureau use of 1-C should be withdrawn and would so recommend to his group; and that Colonel Obenchain of the National Communications System (NCS) had indicated some final word as to the position of the Joint Chiefs on FBI circuit priorities should be received within several days. The Director said, "Let me know. H."

Colonel Obenchain is on leave today as well as Major Norton. Mr. Pat Hasie of the General Services Administration, who is the representative of all civilian agencies in these priority matters, stated that he has unofficially been advised that the Joint Chiefs have withdrawn their objections to FBI use of 1-C priorities but he felt certain that no definite, official position will be taken by them until at least Monday, June 19, and that he would advise us immediately of their official position as soon as it is issued.

I will follow personally on this and advise the Director as soon as we learn the final position taken by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

SUBJECT: CIRCUIT RESTORATION PRIORITIES ON NATIONAL COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM
FOR BUREAU-LEASED CIRCUITS

BO PLANS EMERGENCY HEADQUARTERS

At our request, circuit restoration priority of 1-C was assigned by the National Communications System (NCS) to 23 circuits which the Bureau leases. These would include the circuits from [redacted] and to our relocation site [redacted] and also circuits necessary for dissemination of intelligence to other agencies in Washington and circuits necessary to the operation of our emergency backup interoffice radio system. 1-C is the highest available priority since 1-A is for so-called "order wires" which are necessary to the telephone company to actually make the restorals, and 1-B is for Presidential communications.

Yesterday, 6-12-67, Mr. Wherry and I attended a conference which had been called by Colonel I. R. Obenchain, Jr., Assistant Manager for NCS Operations, Defense Communications Agency, in connection with an objection which had been made to the granting of 1-C priorities to the FBI by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. At the meeting the Joint Chiefs were represented by Major Neal Norton and, in addition to representatives from the Treasury Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), Mr. Pat W. Hasie of the General Services Administration and Mr. E. J. Cox of the Office of Emergency Planning also attended.

Major Norton stated that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were seriously concerned at the expansion of the number of agencies having 1-C priorities since it was felt that if the critical circuits necessary for issuing commands to launch missiles or other retaliatory measures during a nuclear attack were in the same priority category as lines of less essential activities, that the other lines might be restored first and prevent the necessary commands for retaliation being issued. He stated, therefore, that some question had been raised by the Joint Chiefs of Staff as to the propriety of the FBI, INS, and Treasury Department having their circuits in priority 1-C.

Memo to Mr. Mohr from W. S. Tavel
Re: Circuit Restoration Priorities on
NCS for Bureau-Leased Circuits

I pointed out to Major Norton that the Bureau, by Presidential Directive, is responsible for the internal security of the country, that this includes not only critical intelligence which we might well disseminate concerning an impending nuclear attack but also includes counterespionage activities without which enemy agents might conceivably neutralize our military effort, and that, furthermore certain plans were in existence for apprehension of individuals during and after an attack which would necessitate use of these facilities. I pointed out that our circuits between Washington and New York had recently been carrying information of a most critical nature which was disseminated to the President and that I felt that the circuits necessary for our emergency radio system were highly essential.

The discussion disclosed that this whole question has come about through a proposed revision of the NCS priority plan to make it conform with a priority plan recently issued jointly by the Director of Telecommunications Management and the Federal Communications Commission. That priority plan concerns primarily commercial and industrial users who are not participants in the NCS. I pointed out that the Bureau's priorities were granted under the previous NCS priority criteria, namely, "critical intelligence concerning potentially catastrophic attack," and that we are not relying on any revision to justify our inclusion in 1-C priority. I did point out that we felt that the language of the proposed revision strengthened our claim since it includes the words "obtaining or disseminating of critical intelligence concerning the attack or maintaining the internal security of the U.S. during attack . . . ." It also specifies under the 1-C priority criteria "The first record or voice circuit designated by the heads of the FBI, Immigration and Naturalization Service and Treasury Department, to the most critical locations for internal security essential to national survival."

Major Norton stated after my presentation that he felt that the Bureau had a justifiable claim to 1-C priority based on our potential for obtaining critical intelligence of an impending attack and that while he could not speak personally for the Joint Chiefs of Staff group that had considered the matter, he would recommend to them that they withdraw their objection to the Bureau's use of priority 1-C. b7E

The representative of INS pointed out that the two circuits which they had requested in 1-C priority were for the purpose of relaying commands from their national relocation site [REDACTED]

Memo to Mr. Mohr from W. S. Tavel
Re: Circuit Restoration Priorities on
NCS for Bureau-Leased Circuits

b7E

[REDACTED] He also pointed out that INS does have some security responsibilities in connection with the FBI's custodial detention function since they would provide the detention facilities in cooperation with the Bureau.

The Treasury representatives also stated that their circuits were necessary for such functions as Customs and control of foreign funds which they handle for the State Department. Major Norton stated that frankly he personally could not understand the essentiality of the INS and Treasury functions which would warrant 1-C priorities under nuclear attack but that he would present their justification to his group.

Mr. C. D. May of the NCS, who was present, emphasized that the objection by the Joint Chiefs of Staff only represented one of a number of operating agencies and that the final decision would be made by the White House if a unanimous agreement could not be reached at a lower level. I stated that the Bureau was insistent that we retain the 1-C priorities and that if necessary we would appeal the matter to Secretary of Defense McNamara or President Johnson. Colonel Obenchain indicated that a final response from the Joint Chiefs of Staff would be expected by the afternoon of June 14 and that we should have some final word as to their position on the FBI circuits within several days.
